DECISION OF HYTHE PARLEY GIVES FRANCE BIG BENEFIT

Huge War Debt To England To Be Paid When Germany Pays

HUNGARY TO SIGN

Three Nations Will Co-operate Against Her If She Withdraws

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, May 19.—In connection with the decisions at the Hythe Conference, a semi-official note issued in Paris yesterday, says that France has gained an important advantage in the decision that her war debt to Great Britain of 15,000,000,000 francs in gold shall be paid only as payments are received from Germany.

Furthermore Germany's payments in specie will in no way affect reparations in material, notably in coal.

As regards France's share of the German debt, amounting to 82,000,000,000 francs gold, it is estimated that this amount will cover the cost of reparations in the devastated regions and the capital represented by the payment of pensions.

Paris, May 19.—M. Raymond Poincare has resigned the chairmanship of the Reparations Commission, on the ground that the recent conversations at Lympn will end by relieving the Commission of the most difficult part of its task.

REPUBLICAN LEADERS AGREE TO CONFERENCE

M. Millerand, while accepting M. Poincare's resignation, states that he considers that the Commission will lose nothing of its importance or scope.

M. Dutecis, former Minister of Commerce succeeds M. Poincare as member of the French delegation.

Washington, May 19.—The Republican leaders in the House of Representatives have agreed to accept the Senate's resolution, declaring the state of war with Germany and Austria at an end.

Amsterdam, May 19.—According to advices from Budapest. Hungary has decided to sign the peace treaty, owing to the fact that Rumania, Jugo-Slavia and Czecho-Slovakia have agreed—it is stated—to co-operate against Hungary if she refused to sign.

Berlin, May 19.—The war criminals included in the first revised list presented by the Allies to Germany have been summoned to appear before the Supreme Court at Leipzig between June 7 and 20.

Berlin, May 19.—The Imperial Finance Minister, Herr Wirth, speaking at Duesseldorf, foreshadowed the formation of a trust, comprising all the great industrial organisations in Germany with a view to obtaining foreign credits.

ARMAMENT QUESTION IS UP BEFORE LEAGUE

He said that State-owned concerns were still running at a loss and that the Government would be obliged to transfer them to foreign corporations in order to obtain further credits abroad.

Rome, May 20.—The Council of the League of Nations today discussed arrangements to give effect to the provision of the Covenant for an advisory Armaments Commission and also decided on the method in which treaties shall be published in order to prevent secret diplomacy.

The Council addressed a special invitation to the United States to be represented on the International Financial Conference to be held at Brussels, which will deal with the question of reparations and war debt, each State presenting a full report of its finance and trade.

Washington, May 21.—The House of Representatives has adopted the Senate peace resolution, which now goes to the President who is expected to veto it.

Versailles, May 21.—The Hungarian Government has intimated its acceptance of the Allied peace terms. The Treaty will be signed here.

Paris, May 22.—Count Apponyi President of the Hungarian Peace delegation, has resigned.

London, May 21.—It is understood in Paris that the Persian Government has drawn the attention of the League of Nations to the bombardment and occupation of Enzeli.

Peking, May 24.—Mr. Wellington

Duke Bars Daughter From Stage

Lady Diana Cooper, noted English beauty, whose father the Duke of Rutland has forbidden her to "star" in a big show-hit in London's West End for $5,000 a week. The Duke also has put the ban on negotiations for his daughters appearance in a film. The only concession which he has made is to allow Lady Diana to carry out her plan of editing a fashion weekly—because that, in the Duke's opinion is not inconsistent with the standing of his family.

Three Men Are Decorated At Britain's Empire Day Fete

Cross And Medals Bestowed On Heroes Of War —Consul Handles Review In Which Sailors, Solders And Volunteers March

Britons in Shanghai were joined by men and women of other nationalities yesterday in the celebration of Empire Day at the consular grounds. Sir Everard Fraser, Consul-General, was attended by officers of the S.V.C. and reviewed that organisation, the police and a naval contingent.

A notable feature of the celebration was the bestowal by Sir Everard, on behalf of the Empire, of decorations on three men who served in the world war. Lieut. Latimer, of the Machine Gun Corps, was presented with the Military Cross. Sergeant-Major Ladwish, of King Edward's Horse, was given the Distinguished Conduct Medal, Sergeant McGillivary was presented with the Military Medal.

Sir Everard delivered this address:

SIR EVERARD'S ADDRESS

Major Trueman, British officers, non-commissioned officers and members of the S.V.C. This new sixth Empire Day parade is notable in more than one respect. In the first place Empire Day has now been recognised as a public holiday, which regularises a practice instituted by your patriotic zeal and strengthens the bond uniting all Britons throughout the world in a common celebration year by year. Then again today sees our first assembly after the definite conclusion of the Great War which filled our anxious hearts for more than four longdrawn years; practically all our Shanghai men who came through the war have now returned, many I am glad to say to resume service in your ranks. That they did well is what we looked for on the part of men drawn from a Corps with your high ideals alike of discipline and of fellowship.

The S.V.C. deserved well of us all during the war, not only those members who were able to realise your common longing to go to the Front but also those who were compelled to stand and wait while their comrades took part in active service. I venture, indeed, to suggest that theirs was the harder part whom insuperable reasons kept here in Shanghai; and to most of them the Corps afforded a means of keeping fit and ready for the eagerly expected day of recall home and also gave assurance that they were not in fact standing idle while others strove mightily.

THE WAR SPIRIT

In our British community before the war the Empire spirit burned none too brightly—Shanghai is not within the borders of our Empire and there was a tendency towards a cosmopolitanism which cared for none but local things and deemed rather bad form any display of pride in being British. But a few months of war changed all that: thereafter our patriotism triumphed and we gave all we could to the Empire's cause. For that happy reformation much credit is due to the spirit inculcated in your Corps to which the British authorities turned again and again for support.

To you the memory of the war years must ever be a satisfaction as well as a stimulus: and I am sure that, whenever you and your successors recall that stressful period, there will be recalled also your commandants, civil and military, who throughout those trying times gave ungrudgingly such eminent service to our community until the return of peace has enabled them both to seek most honorable rest in retirement. Major Trueman has set an example which every British volunteer may well strive to follow—an example second to none of unselfish work for the Empire's interest in Shanghai.

A further point of interest in today's ceremony is that it affords the opportunity to hand in a public and official manner to three Shanghai Britons marks of distinction won in the war.

English Dockers Refuse To Load Munitions For Ireland

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 20.—The latest news from Ireland shows how the military and naval forces are reinforcing the constabulary.

A flying column of the 7th Hussars has replaced the police, patroling the mountainous district near Dublin, while a detachment of the Naval Brigade has arrived at Skibbereen with three guns and wireless equipment for the police barracks. The military are occupying the neighboring police barracks at Goleen.

Stories of outrage and murder continue to be received. The latest include the story of an attack with revolvers on two constabulary sergeants in a Limerick Street. One of them, who had 20 years' service with the R. I. C., was killed and the other an ex-Army officer, dangerously wounded. Their assailants escaped in the dusk.

ENGLISH LONGSHOREMEN BALK AT IRISH SUPPLIES

The decision of a court-martial in Dublin has been promulgated, sentencing to sixteen weeks' imprisonment a native of Enniskillen for having in his possession a seditious document, namely, the official journal of the Irish Volunteers.

London, May 20.—A meeting of the Irish Unionist Alliance in Dublin today passed a resolution against the Home Rule Bill as betraying the Loyalists and the highest interests of the Empire.

London, May 20.—An interesting new development in the Irish situation is reported from Dublin. It is stated that English dockers have refused to load munitions for Ireland and that the Irish transport-workers have decided not to unload any munitions that may arrive. Two shiploads of munitions are expected at Dublin from England.

IRISH WOULD FIX IMPERIAL TAXATION

London, May 20.—The Belfast Chamber of Commerce has issued a statement on the financial provisions of the Home Rule Bill.

It is contended that the Irish contribution to Imperial expenditure should not exceed £5,000,000 instead of £18,000,000.

The Chamber also proposed that the South of Ireland should contribute 71½ percent and the North of Ireland 28½ percent of the amount.

London, May 21.—General Henry H. Tudor has been appointed Chief of the Irish Constabulary.

The military occupation of the disturbed districts is being gradually extended. A large force of cavalry has been moved to within ten miles of Dublin and is occupying the surrounding hills.

Reports of burnings and outrages still continue to be received from the unoccupied districts.

Price Cutting In Retail Districts Is Laid To Banks

(Reuter's Service)

New York, May 19.—The leading banking interests are extending their campaign for deflation.

Their policy has already been effective in reducing speculative loans to the extent of $100,000,000 in a fortnight. The banks in the wholesale drygoods districts are proceeding along the same lines and the pressure, exerted by their campaign, is said to have been directly responsible for the wave of price-cutting in many retail lines.

PANDEMONIUM IN FRENCH CHAMBER OVER RAIL STRIKE

Royalists' Questioning Creates Tumult—Unions Quarrel Among Themselves

(Reuter's Service)

Paris, May 20.—There were tumultuous scenes in the Chamber of Deputies yesterday arising out of the interpellation by the Royalists on the strike situation. Finally the President of the Chamber suspended the sitting after half an hour's pandemonium.

Paris, May 19.—Most of the strikers have now returned to work and the strikes may be regarded as at an end.

They have now degenerated into a family quarrel among the unions belonging to the General Confederation of Labor.

The men are beginning to take a saner view of matters and have been convinced that they were being misled by revolutionary agitators.

Paris, May 20.—In the debate in the Chamber of Deputies today on the strike situation, M. Steeg, Minister of the Interior, declared that the strike had been managed by extremists and had aimed at interfering with the economic life of the country. Therefore the Government had not been "strike-breakers but breakers of civil war." The Minister concluded with a tribute to the patriotism of the workers.

Paris, May 21.—The long debate on the strike came to a close this evening, when a vote of confidence in the Government was carried by 525 votes to 90.

Paris, May 21.—The National Federal Committee of the General Confederation of Labor decided today by 96 votes to 11 in favor of the resumption of work.

Bank's Failure In Japan May Mean New Crisis

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Yokohama, May 24.—The Seventy-Fourth Bank, which is owned by Mr. Moji, has suspended bushiness for three weeks from today.

Osaka, May 24.—It is reported that the Seventy-Fourth Bank has suspended business owing to the renewed apprehension which has sent down all market prices.

The Osaka branch of the Bank has also suspended operation. The Bank is largely controlled by the Moji Company which is engaged chiefly in the silk and other textile business. The Mogi Company has recently met with severe reverses. The capital of the Bank is 5,000,000 Yen. 3,150,000 Yen paid up; the total deposits amount to 60,000,000 Yen and the total loans to 70,000,000 Yen. It is feared that the closing down of this Bank will prove a great blow to the general economic situation, which recently was on the road to recovery.

Yokohama, May 24, Later.—The Yokohama Silk Exchange has suspended business temporarily owing to the closure of the Seventy-Fourth Bank, pending the adjustment of the Bank's books.

New Minister Leaving For Peking Plans Return To Shanghai In Week

"—And whatever their differences may be it is important now for Americans in this part of the world to present a united front." In this sentence is found the keynote of the address delivered last night by United States Minister Charles R. Crane at the dinner that was given for him by the American Chamber of Commerce and the American Association. When he pronounced the words a wave of applause swept over the gathering of two hundred diners.

The dinner at the Palace hotel was the last of a number of events of welcome that were crowded into the single day the new minister was able to spend in Shanghai on this occasion. He and Mrs. Crane will return in a week when Mrs. Crane will christen the first of a quartet of American Shipping Board ships to be launched from a Shanghai shipyard, the Mandarin. This launching will take place on June 4.

Each of the diners was presented to the new Minister on entering the flag draped banquet room at the entrance of which in a receiving line with Mr. Crane stood, Mr. E. S. Cunningham, American Consul-General at Shanghai, Mr. J. Harold Dollar, President of the American Chamber of Commerce and Dr. S. A. Ransom, President of the American Association of China.

DR. RANSOM TOASTMASTER

As toastmaster in giving formal welcome to the distinguished guest Doctor Ransom said it was particularly gratifying that it has fallen to Americans of Shanghai to extend to Mr. Crane the first welcome to China. He referred briefly to Mr. Crane's career, saying he had been a traveler in many lands and added that he is no newcomer to China as he had visited the country on two former occasions, in 1880, and again in 1918.

He ventured the belief that Mr. Crane will find many changes and in illustrating the manner in which American commerce has been expanding he mentioned that China's trade with the United States in 1919 made a gain of 36 percent over the preceding year and that of China's total trade 16 percent now is done with the United States. He spoke of the numerous new institutions, particularly the new American banks and the expansion of shipping.

He said that the interest of the whole world is focussed on China and asserted that this country now presents many problems that will tax to the full all of the new American Minister's abilities. He referred to an address that Mr. Crane had made here in Shanghai on the occasion of his preceding visit in 1918 when the visitors voiced the hope that China would try to place its house in order. He said while apparently little had been done in this direction a certain measure of progress has been achieved.

Mr. Crane was the only other speaker and in opening he struck a sympathetic note when he told his hearers that he meant merely to talk about things to them as to members of his family around his fireside.

"And you are members of my family now," he added, pausing for

MILITARY CROSS IS PRESENTED TO TOWN OF YPRES

Lord French Presents It To Commemorate Patriotism Of The Population

(Reuter's Service)

Ypres, May 19.—There was an impressive ceremony here today on the occasion of the presentation of the British Military Cross to the town of Ypres. Field-Marshal Viscount French whom King George had delegated for the duty came over specially from England. The King of the Belgians was present.

The Burgomaster of Ypres, in the course of a speech, recalled the defense of the famous Ypres salient in which over 200,000 British soldiers fell. The Burgomaster concluded by paying a fine tribute to British valor.

Lord French said that the Cross had been presented to commemorate the courage of the British soldiers and the patriotism of the population. There was a tremendous outburst of cheering when the Field Marshal pinned the Cross on a cushion, while bands played the British and Belgian national anthems.

King Albert spoke in glowing terms of the indomitableness of the British defenders of the salient, declaring that their resistance had greatly contributed towards checking the German rush to the coast.

After the ceremony, King Albert and Lord French visited the British cemetery where they placed wreaths on the graves.

LONDON REPORT

London, May 21.—An authoritative commentary on the Polish operations shows that to attain the Dnieper line the Poles advanced on a front of 250 miles to an average depth of from 100 to 150 miles in sixteen days.

There is no confirmation of the reported capture of Odessa by the Ukrainians.

With reference to Siberia it is authoritatively stated that the Reds attacked the Japanese east of Verkhne-Udinsk and were defeated with a loss of 300 killed, while the Japanese casualties were only two.

The quality of the Siberian troops, it is added, is of the poorest, they show no inclination to fight.

Other Red forces are stated to be assembling west and south of Nikolaievsk.

PERSIAN CASPIAN PORT ATTACKED BY RADICALS

London, May 21.—A Teheran telegram to the Times says: "When they arrived at Enzeli, the Bolshevik warships bombarded the town. A deputation including a British officer boarded the Bolshevik flagship. The Bolsheviks demanded the surrender of Denikin's fleet and intimated that the future of Enzeli would be discussed between London and Moscow.

The Persian Government have protested against this gratuitous attack. Negotiations are proceeding."

CONFIRMS REPORT

London, May 20.—Reuter learns that the British force at Enzeli has been withdrawn.

It is stated in British military quarters that the retirement is purely a precautionary measure and that no apprehension is felt for the safety of the troops. They consist of a detachment of the Mesopotamian Field Force.

No military situation has been created as the Bolsheviks have had command of the Caspian Sea since their arrival at Baku and the possibility has been long anticipated that the Bolsheviks would strike in the direction of Enzeli in order to capture ten small ships, belonging to General Denikin's force.

The Allied military position at Batum, which is at the western end of the Baku pipe-line, is being considerably strengthened.

It is not anticipated that the Bolsheviks will further extend their position in Persia owing to the difficulties of organising transportation.

The British oilwells are at least a month's journey from the scene of the present happenings.

Note.—The British troops at Enzeli, were probably two weak battalions with a few guns.

REDS IMPOSE TERMS

London, May 20.—In connection with the withdrawal of the British troops from Enzeli, the Persian Caspian port, Reuter's learn that telegrams from Teheran give the facts as follows:

A large force of Bolshevists landed near Enzeli on May 18 from thirteen ships. The General Officer commanding was obliged to accept the Bolshevists terms owing to the latter's numbers, and the British evacuated the port in the evening. The landing parties had apparently come from Baku where there are reported to be 40,000 Reds.

London, May 20.—In the House of Commons today, replying to Alderman Walter Forrest, Mr. Cecil Harmsworth, Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs, said that a Government Committee was being established presided over by Lord Emmott and including Sir Ellis Hume-Williams and Sir Ryland Dent Adkins, to collect the statements of British refugees, recently returned from Russia, for publication.

Booking for the remaining performances is brisk and assures capacity houses.

CANADA'S TRADE OUTLOOK BRIGHT

Exports Exceed Imports By Over A Billion In Last Five-Year Period

(Reuter's Service)

Ottawa, May 19.—The Budget, presented in the Dominion House of Commons today, showed a glowing financial position. The Finance Minister stated that the excess of imports over exports for the five years, ended March, 1915, aggregated $826,000,000, while for the five years, ended March, 1920, exports exceeded imports by $1,803,000,000.

Imports from the mother Country last year increased by $53,000,000 over those during the previous year. There had recently been an increase in exports from Great Britain which, last March, exceeded $25,000,000, constituting a record.

The falling off in exports to Great Britain last year was due to the cessation of the huge output of munitions in the previous year but a very great portion was shown to be already replaced.

The revenue for last year registered a record of $388,000,000 and exceeded ordinary expenditure war interest, and expenditure on pensions and soldiers' re-establishment by $39,000,000.

The currency position showed that Canada was relatively in an exceedingly strong position with gold, amounting to 43 percent of the total circulation, as compared with 67 percent before the war.

American Public's Kick At High Prices Affects Trade In Cotton Goods

Overalls Fad Expected To Die Soon But People's Intention Of Using Old Shoes And Clothing Hits At Retail Markets

(Reuter's Service)

New York, April 30 (by mail).—The unsettled state of the cotton market continues.

The situation in Japan has affected the buying by Japanese interests who have lately been the largest overseas buyers, while English buyers have done little since February, although it is regarded as practically certain that they will resume purchase before long.

The latest advices received through Government sources from Japan are to the effect that the financial crisis is past, and officials here are quite optimistic over the outlook in that country. Because of the Chinese boycott of Japanese goods, however, it is reported in dry goods circles here that Japanese high grade yarns are being offered at 20 percent below prices quoted by American mills, and export business in general has suffered a setback for this reason.

FIGHT HIGH PRICES

The public protest against high prices is taking such concrete form that it can no longer be regarded with indifference by the trade. New organisations are being formed almost every day to combat high clothing costs and the jobbers are finding cancellations more frequent.

The only remedy apparently lies in reduced prices, or the alternative of carrying high priced goods along in hopes that the economy movement may prove to be spasmodic and will soon disappear—a view which does not now seem likely of realisation.

There is little doubt but that the "overalls" movement will die a natural death, for it was based on a fad, but the movement towards old clothes, old shoes, etc., is likely to be more lasting and to have its exect in market circles.

It is common knowledge now in the dry goods market that recent wild buying has entirely disappeared, and left many speculators landed with a lot of high priced goods which they must finance through the banks at increasing rates or throw on the market at concessions to meet an indifferent demand.

WAGE QUESTION AGAIN

In the New England states the wage question is uppermost again. A new scale must shortly be negotiated and the operatives, guided by the high prices of mill stocks, and recent big stock and cash dividends are demanding a share of the profits in materially high wages.

These the manufacturers oppose on the ground that they believe nothing should be done now further to increase the cost of living, but with the dividend sheets before them, the operatives will doubtless be hard to convince with this sort of logic.

The whole cotton trade seems to be facing a period of great uncertainty at the moment and many believe the peak has been reached.

The silk industry is in a similar plight. Raw silk markets have been greatly unsettled by the confusion in Japanese speculative markets and the varying reports of values quoted by cable here.

The troubles in the industry have been enhanced by the complex conditions arising out of continued financial pressure, poor crop reports, most unsatisfactory transportation conditions, political discussions and fears of still greater taxation on capital and income.

SILK TRADE UNSETTLED

Moreover there is as yet little prospect of reducing the costs of production in so far as they are affected by other factors than the raw material.

The unsettled conditions in silks at the moment are attracting more than the usual attention given to one branch of an industry from the fact that influences not unlike those preceding the collapse have been noted in other directions and merchants are feeling the constantly growing demand of consumers for lower prices in clothing.

Silk merchants of long experience believe now that the worst is over in their own industry in so far as shock results are concerned, but it may take some little time to restore active buying.

Koo, Chinese Minister in Washington, suggests the appointment of a representative to the Society of the League of Nations. He points out the necessity of a union between the two existing societies in Peking, the one headed by Liang Chi-chao, supported by Liang Shih-yi, Wang Tah-hsieh and Ling Chang-min and the other led by Li Shen-to with the Anfu Club as his following. He declares that neither of these two parties are representative and continues "this is unfortunate in view of the need in the future to send representatives to Europe to attend the meeting of the League of Nations."

Mr. Dunstan suggests the formation of a consumers' association to encourage the production of pulp in the Colonies and dependencies.

Customs Seized 42 Tons Of Opium In Last Three Years, Declares Anti-Opium Society

Peking Association Asserts In Message To British Solon That Smuggling Seriously Militates Against Local Suppression Of Cultivation And Traffic

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Peking, May 21.—In connection with the anti-opium measures being framed by the House of Commons, recently reported in a telegram from London, the Anti-Opium Association in Peking telegraphed to Mr. Short, who brought the matter forward, as follows:

"Congratulations on the anti-opium measures you are introducing, which are most important first step towards the inter-Imperial action necessary to secure suppression of the present heavy influx of Indian opium and morphia into China, the closing down of the opium farms at Singapore and Hongkong and supervision over unrestricted growth of poppy cultivation in Burma.

"We consider that production of opium in India should be limited to officially ascertained requirements, that British manufacture of narcotics should be limited by Government control to the world's medicinal requirements and that export should be prohibited except under foreign official requisition.

"The Chinese Customs seized 42 tons of opium, five hundredweight of morphia and nearly two hundredweight of cocaine, which was being smuggled into China during the last three years. This represents a small percentage of the total.

"These facts seriously militate against local suppression of cultivation. For instance, the Yunnanese contend that it is unfair to interfere with them while millions of Chinese dollars are pouring into Burma in payment for opium.

"The Customs recently seized twelve pounds of poppy seed forwarded by parcel post from Bombay to Tientsin, which was plainly labelled poppy seed by the Japanese sender, in contravention of China's revised tariff, rule 4.

"Pending promulgation of the new laws we urge refusal to export opium drugs to countries obviously intending to re-export.

"The British members of the Association implore the House further to aid in removing the stigma attaching to Indian State-aided cultivation and opium revenues, which are unworthy of a great Empire."

(China Press Correspondence)

Hinghwa, Fukien, May 14.—For about two years the Counties of Tatien, Tehwa, Yungchun and Sienyu have been under the control of soldiers and officers that style themselves the Southern Army. The forces are largely local troops with a few officers from the South. The government in these counties is far from a settled one as it is divided into numerous factions with numerous clashes keeping the country in a state of unrest. Nevertheless the government is recognised by Canton.

The attitude of this so-called Southern Government towards the cultivation of poppy is not different from that of the Northern Government in this Province. They decided to make poppy a source of revenue and squeeze. Soldiers and runners from the yamens of the four counties named above urged the people last Fall to plant poppy. In many places where the people hesitated to plant the heads of the villages were informed that they must plant a certain percent of their fields in poppy. Seed was furnished them and a seed tax collected. As a result of these methods a large acreage was planted. Fields usually given up to the cultivation of wheat and tobacco were planted in poppy.

Sienyu City is one of the largest cities in the area. It is one of the centers of the government. Standing on the walls of the city four weeks ago one could look out upon the rich valley and see fields everywhere white with poppy bloom. In the early morning one could see the farmers busy tapping and collecting the opium wax. Fields within a few paces of the Sienyu City wall were planted, brought to bloom and harvested without molestation other that the collection of a rather heavy tax upon the crop. The crop of poppy harvested in Sienyu county was an enormous one. The county is flooded with opium which can be purchased for a few dimes per ounce. Everywhere one sees the pale sallow faced opium smoker.

One cannot help but sympathise with the students in their agitation against the government in China. They recognise that the forces in control, both North and South, exist at the expense of the people. Subjecting the people to the control of the opium curse is essentially not different from selling them under foreign control.

House Asked To Impeach Post

A resolution looking to the impeachment of Lewis F. Post, Assistent Secretary of Labor, for his attitude toward the deportation of extremists, has been introduced in the House by Representative Hoch, Republican, Kansas, according to a report from Washington. The resolution would direct the Judiciary Committee to investigate the charges made against Post by Chairman Johnson, of the Immigration Committee, and others, and if the evidence warrants to report a resolution proposing impeachment. It is alleged that Secretary Post sought to prevent the deportation of alien "Reds."

(Reuter's Service)

New York, May 19.—The Paris correspondent of the Associated Press states that among the chief aims of the conference of leading businessmen from the United States, Great Britain, France, Italy and Belgium, which will be held in Paris in June, is the establishment of an International Chamber of Commerce with a large staff of experts and with its headquarters at the seat of the League of Nations.

Doctor John H. Fahey of Boston, who is chairman of the Organisation Committee, has arrived in Paris with the advance delegation of the United States representatives. The total number of delegates from all the countries represented will be 500. The Conference will discuss the most vital economic points of the day.

Montagu's Silver Report

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 22.—Messrs. Montagu's silver report says:

"It is learned from New York that the United States Mint has instructed the purchase at $1 the fine ounce of silver of strictly American origin.

"It is thought that the stringency of the regulations in this matter will exclude silver already smelted owing to the difficulty of tracing its source.

"Thus the effect of the operation of the Pittman Act is not likely to be felt in the London market for some time, especially if the supplies from the Continent continue to be similar to those recently received."

TENANTS ARE RECOGNISED IN NEW BRITISH LAW

Latest Ruling Fixes Rate Of Increase In Rent Landlords May Ask

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 22.—The rights of both landlords and tenants are recognised in the new Rents Restriction Bill, the text of which has now been issued.

Landlords, under the bill, are permitted to increase rent by 15 percent and may recover extra sums specifically paid as increased rates.

The tenant may appeal to the County Court to suspend the increase of rent if the house is not maintained in reasonable repair.

A month's notice is stipulated before increases become operative.

Interest on mortgages is limited to six and a half percent.

The previous protection of tenants is continued but landlords who gave up their occupation to join the forces may resume.

Premiums in any form on tenancy are forbidden, infringement entailing a penalty not exceeding £100 fine, and money so paid since March 25 may be recovered.

Lessors of unfurnished houses are not permitted to charge over a 25 percent increase on the normal profit which could be similarly obtained at the outbreak of war. In cases of breach of this stipulation, the overcharge may be recovered and a penalty will be inflicted.

The bill, which will operate for three years, applies to houses in London of a rateable value of £105 a year, in Scotland of £90 and elsewhere £70 a year.

Girl Wins Prize Awarded Here By Scottish Society

Mr. Robert G. Dowie F.E.I.S. has reported on the examination recently conducted by him in competition for the Bursaries given by the Saint Andrew's Society to Scottish children. Several competitors whose names were entered did not attend at all, and one attended only on the first day. It is understood also that other eligible children were not sent forward for the competition.

The existing scheme of examination which has been employed for the last twelve years or so was designed to give 75 percent marks for General Education (reading, writing, arithmetic, geography, history, English, etc.) and 25 percent for Scottish History and Literature etc. Age limits are 12 to 16 years and the examiner has made his age handicap so effective that the Bursary winner has often come from the earlier years. The various question papers were set to allow for the differing methods of work in the schools of Shanghai, the Scottish work being prescribed and the General work being taken on a very wide field of selection, of elementary subjects.

The small numbers of those competing and other signs of lessening interest bring the committee to the point of inquiry as to the future work of the Society on this line. Suggestions from parents and teachers will be welcome.

The Bursaries are awarded as follows:

I. Anna Pearson, Shanghai Public School for Girls $100.

II. Gladys Pearson, Shanghai Public School for Girls $60.

III. Jessie Farquharson, Shanghai Public School for Girls $40.

Toothache!

To those who have experienced it, the mere thought of the word brings fear and anxiety. The tormenting, lightning-like pains following the slightest touch of the decayed tooth, and the dull, agonizing pain which robs one of sleep and lessens the capacity for mental and physical exertion are sufficient to drive one to despair.

The best remedy for the relief of toothache as of all other pains due to the nerves is;

MARIE TEMPEST RETURNING FOR FAREWELL WEEK

Marie Tempest, who, by the way, was entertained at the British Legation by His Majesty's Minister on her arrival in Peking last week, will make her farewell appearances in North China at the Lyceum Theater, Shanghai, early in June.

Mr. Wilfred Cotton has been here during the last few days of the week and he has arranged that Miss Tempest, Mr. Graham Browne and the entire Company shall play for an all too short season of three nights en route for the South, opening on Thursday June 10 in "The Marriage of Kitty," with "The Duke of Killicrankie" on Friday, June 11 and "Mrs. Dot" on Saturday, June 12.

Thereafter this fine combination of players proceed to the Argentine playing a short season at Manila and at Sydney en route.

Their stay in Tientsin was a conspicuous success and all box-office records were broken. The opening performance in Peking Thursday last was a brilliant success. The Court mourning unfortunately prohibited the official attendance of the British Legation but all other allied Legations were present as well as a representative assembly of high Chinese Officials. The Peking pavilion was crowded to its walls and W. Somerset Maugham's comedy "Penelope," which was the opening play of the season was received with unbounded enthusiasm.

Japanese And British Exchange Compliments At Banquet In London

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 18.—The "Coming-of-Age" dinner of the Japan Society was held at Prince's Restaurant today under the Chairmanship of Viscount Chinda, the Japanese Ambassador. A distinguished company of Japanese and British were present.

Lord Burnham, proposing the toast of the Emperor, referred to the growth of Anglo-Japanese relations and the advantage of the Alliance for peace, not only in the East but in the world. He expressed his fervent admiration for Japanese enterprise and honor.

Viscount Chinda in the course of his speech said that he hoped that the Prince of Wales would some day visit Japan where an unsurpassable welcome would await him. Lord Swaythling, proposing the toast of the services of the two Empires, said that the praises of the services of the Japanese Navy during the war had never sufficiently been sung.

Rear Admiral Ilda, the Japanese Naval Attache, replying, referred to the heroic spirit and conduct of Admiral Craddock at Coronel which, he said, was the spirit of Nelson, and added that Japan's Navy was undoubtedly endowed with the same spirit because it had carefully studied Nelson's old doctrines.

The other speakers included Major-General G. D. Jeffreys, Mr. K. Mori, the Japanese Commercial Attache, and Mr. Stanley Machin, Chairman of the London Chamber of Commerce.

CASTORIA

for Infants and Children.

The Effects of Opiates.

THAT INFANTS are peculiarly susceptible to opium and its various preparations, all of which are narcotic, is well known. Even in the smallest doses, if continued, these opiates cause changes in the functions and growth of the cells, which are likely to become permanent, causing imbecility, mental perversion, a craving for alcohol or narcotics in later life. Nervous diseases, such as intractable nervous dyspepsia and lack of staying power, are a result of dosing with opiates or narcotics to keep children quiet in their infancy. The rule among physicians is that children should never receive opiates in the smallest doses for more than a day at a time, and only then if unavoidable.

The administration of Anodynes, Drops, Cordials, Soothing Syrups and other narcotics to children by any but a physician cannot be too strongly decried, and the druggist should not be a party to it. Children who are ill need the attention of a physician, and it is nothing less than a crime to dose them wilfully with narcotics. Castoria contains no narcotics if it bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher.

The signature of Chas. H. Fletcher guarantees genuine Castoria.

Physicians Recommend Castoria.

"Your preparation known as Castoria I have used for years in children's complaints and I have found nothing better."
JOHN J. LEFFA, M. D., Cleveland, Ohio.

"I have prescribed your Castoria in many cases and have always found it an efficient and speedy remedy."
A. F. FEELER, M. D., St. Louis, Mo.

"For several years I recommended your 'Castoria and shall always continue to do so, as it has invariably produced beneficial results."
EDWIN F. PARDEE, M. D., New York City.

"I have used your Castoria in my own household with good results, and have advised several patients to use it for its mild, laxative effect and freedom from harm."
EDWARD PARRISH, M. D., Brooklyn, N. Y.

"Your Castoria is a meritorious household remedy. It is purely vegetable and acts as a mild cathartic. Above all, it does no harm, which is more than can be said of the great majority of children's remedies."
VICTOR H. COFFMAN, M. D., Omaha, Neb.

"Your Castoria holds the esteem of the medical profession in a manner held by no other proprietary preparation. It is a sure and reliable medicine for infants and children. In fact it is the universal household remedy for infantile ailments."
J. A. PARKER, M. D., Kansas City, Mo.

Two Kiangwan Records Clipped Yesterday By Wilson And The Oriole

Holiday Crowd Given Treat Witnessing Events On Chinese Turf When Two Ponies Bettered Times In One And Two Mile Distances

Two Kiangwan race records were lowered yesterday and some dividends of size were paid at the meeing. Toeg and Gubbay's chesnut "Wilson," with Mr. Knoll up, won the second race, one mile, in 2:02 1-5, clipping 1-5 of a second off the track record. Winsom and Hasty's chesnut, "Oriole," with Mr. Hill up, won the fifth race, two miles, in 4:22, lowering the track record seven and two-fifths seconds. The former record was held by "Wakefield" with a time of 4:29 2-5.

Turf history was made at the meeting and the crowd was wildly enthusiastic in spite of the muggy weather. There was heavy wagering but some large dividends were paid on "dark horses." "Persimmon" belied the name by romping home at $149.50 when only 57 persons ventured support. Loganfield was the upset with 1,131 backers and only second place to his credit.

A deadheat in the sixth race lent interest to the meeting. "Eastward Ho" and "The Flyer" came in together.

Here are the results of the races:

1.—The C. G. R. Race.—Value $300, 2nd pony $125, 3rd pony $100. For griffins of the year that have not won more than two races.—One and a quarter miles.

SCOTLAND WINS ROWING MATCH

England Unfortunate In All International Events Of The Meeting

DENMARK THIRD

Motor Boat Contest Slow—Eagle Wins Sailing Race

The weather on Sunday up at Henli was all that could be desired and a very pleasant day's sport was witnessed. Scotland came into her own in the International eight and pairs, the runner-up in both events being America. England has been most unfortunate this Spring being fourth in the whole three international races, Fours Eights and Pairs.

The following table shows the standing of the various countries that entered for the international races this Spring:

	Fours.	Eights.	Pairs.
Scotland	2	1	1
America	3	2	2
Denmark	1	—	3
England	4	4	4
The World	—	3	—

The motor boat race was watched with interest though until some more scientific method of handicapping is devised, this kind of race necessarily loses a certain amount of the excitement that would result if imposts were adjusted accurately. At present the system is of the type known as "Bang and Go Back." Mr. Noel B. Ramsey's Edith won the event.

The sailing race was pretty to look at though the wind conditions did not allow of much speed. A fleet of midget yachts on the Hsinyangkong is certainly a pretty sight. This event went to Mr. G. Brown's Eagle.

VETERANS' RACE

The Veterans' Race aroused plenty of interest, though not all of the competitors by any means should yet be in this class in these days of deferred old age. Muller's quartette was the winning one.

The Junior-Senior Fours was annexed by the crew stroked by "Doddie" Brown.

The latter's sister, Miss N Brown, was the heroine of the Mixed Fours, stroking to victory her boat, whose crew consisted of herself, her sister (bow) and Messrs. A. J. Grant and Joe Evans in No. 3 and No. 2 seats, respectively. Fours Mixed crews in all took part in this race, which is a pleasing augury of the interest about to be shown by ladies in local rowing.

The following are the detailed results of Sunday's events:

THE LITTLE ONE'S COLD
And How To Treat It.

If your little one has a cold do not neglect it, for neglected colds lead to bronchitis, pneumonia and dangerous illness.

When the first symptoms of a cold are noticed give the child a warm bath and dry carefully. Reduce the quantity of food a little and give Baby's Own Tablets to move the bowels. Grease the nose inside and out with pure vaseline.

Mrs. James R. McDearmid, of Martintown, Ontario, Canada, says: —"I find Baby's Own Tablets the best medicine for baby I have ever used. They break up colds, cure sour stomach and the other little ills with which babies are troubled. They have made my baby bright, strong and healthy, and I would not be without them."

Baby's Own Tablets are guaranteed to be entirely free from narcotics and perfectly harmless. They are recommended in cases of simple fever, colic, constipation, indigestion, diarrhoea, teething troubles and worms. Sold by chemists, or post-free at 50 cents the vial by Dr. Williams' Medicine Co., 96 Szechuen Road, Shanghai.

Italian Military Defeats Charged To Gen. Cadorna

By GUGLIELMO FERRERO
(The Famous Italian Historian)

Paris, April 17.—The World War is entering now into its second life, that of history, in Italy also. It is passing from the battlefields and the closed halls of the Ministries into the world of books. And history is beginning to photograph, on the great empty space of the past, the thing which was and which is no longer, the invisible, dispersed in fragments in the frail, uncertain memory of man.

For men are made like that. They keep on asking ironically whether history is to be taken seriously or as an amusement, when that same history pretends to some knowledge of the truth in connection with the events of the past; and yet, they return again and again to the writing and reading of history, and at each return are more avoid than before.

Among the more notable histories of the war that have been published of late is that of General Ettore Vigano, which has been published by Lemonnier under the title of "Our War: How It Was Prepared and How It Was Conducted Up to November, 1917."

SIMPLE, VIVID ACCOUNT

It gives, as the title suggests, the story of Italy's war up to the battle of Caporetto and the fallback on the Piave; that is to say, how the plan of a great offensive war against the Austrian Empire began, developed and failed. It is a simple and vivid account, perfectly clear, without undue details or excess of military erudition, and without that emphasis that has unfortunately disfigured the episodes of our war in so many books that have been published, whether those episodes were great or small, or fortunate or otherwise.

In this book our war is presented with its natural face and in the real proportions of a human episode. And what a number of legends have had to disappear out of the recital!

A considerable part of the book describes the battle of Caporetto and the retreat that followed it. But the reader will seek in vain for invectives against the defeatism of the Socialists, or recriminations against the Pope's Encyclical, or the suspected and discovered treason of the soldiers; all those subjects that have offered, for the last three years, such a useful mark for the public ire. All these explanations have been sent back, by the historian, to the country they came from, the land of fable.

SCORES GENERAL CADORNA

General Vigano's book, which in every other part is inspired by a wise and humane indulgence, is on the contrary extremely severe against General Cadorna. Someone has defined it right away as an "arraignment" against the first generalissimo of our army. It is not the case to pass any judgment before General Cadorna has replied; but, while awaiting for the other side to speak, one cannot but manifest one's impressions. And the impression that predominates in me is this: That in the midst of so many fair and just observations, General Vigano should consider Cadorna responsible for errors and excesses which might be more justly laid upon institutions, upon politics, upon a certain spirit—and not a happy spirit—of the times, all of which dominated the war, especially in its first part, which misfortune had humilitated and which victory has reawakened.

Cadorna seems to me a man imbued with that species of fanatical arrogance, which does not belong to the old militarism of '48 or '15 (which still preserved a trace of good sense) but to the very latest militarism, that which flourished after 1870 and was caressed and smiled upon even by some democratic States and parties. I allude to the militarism which had the delusion of being able to enroll in a single army all men from eighteen to forty-five years of age, to throw them, after a few weeks' instruction, into the midst of the terrors and horrors of the bloodiest war that mankind has ever seen, to make them fight for years and die by millions, and to do all this without shattering the world.

ALMOST A DICTATOR

Cadorna, imbued like the rest with the ambition to improvise an army of Xerxes and by that to accomplish one of the great undertakings of the war, flung himself, open-eyed, into the midst of the civil war of the parties that were striving for the command of the war; he assumed almost a dictatorship in Italy; and he flung himself into an offensive war against the Austrian Empire, a bloody and interminable war, just as if all those millions of men who had been educated in peace and for peace and had been torn by him from their dearest labors, were all tried and hardened warriors, living only for the purpose of giving and receiving blows.

Politics did the rest. We declared war against Austria in such an extremity that we had to fling ourselves at once into the attack, unless we wanted our war to be discredited from the beginning. But we had not and could not have the forces necessary for substaining that offensive war for such a long time. Cadorna had to face that mortal contradiction, and he appeared to dominate it for two years and a half; and then, he suddenly became its victim.

But it would be unjust to consider these delusions as a special defect of Cadorna, even though to him and in him they were more disastrous than with other generals, both here and in other countries, of the great war. In this instance the spirit of the times—or at least a certain spirit of the times—spoke and acted in Cadorna and through his mouth.

All the governments were seized with a kind of delirium in this war, in consequence of which they asked impossible sacrifices of the people, as if they were the simplest and most natural things in the world. It is an old disease, this delirium, and it is still raging; and that is why everybody is so astounded to see that the world is shouting and shrieking and all upside down, when it would be so much to the advantage of everybody that it should be sensible and quiet!

GOVERNMENTS' VAIN DREAM

The governments really imagined, it would appear, that the millions of men that they had torn from their homes and their shops for five years would placidly return to them and resume their civilian life at the point where they had broken off; and the governments appeared to think that this blissful state of things would take place at any moment and from the moment that they would be pleased to bring about the return!

What weakness, what incoherence, and what a lack of conscience all the governments showed in this war! General Vigano's book is rich in curious documents, which bring to light the many defects in which our Government, too, was brother to its allies.

This is the first of all the books that I have read on the war which shows clearly what was the constitutional order of the Supreme Command in the World War. It is a point that had been left in the dark, perhaps purposely. In order to prepare himself well for a great struggle against Germanism, Salandra (former Italian Premier) had copied Germany, or rather, Prussia, in this also, especially in regard to what she had done in 1870.

The King must be the supreme commander of the army, and General Cadorna the first executor of his orders in the quality of head of the staff. This was the theory; but as in practice the King never wanted to exercise his authority, General Cadorna was, in fact, the absolute and uncontrolled arbiter of the war and he was covered by the royal authority.

The Government could give no orders to the head of the staff; nor could it even keep any serious surveillance over him or reprove him or remonstrate with him, for the head of the staff was responsible only to the King. The Government, on the other hand, had to consider the desires and proposals that came from the head of the staff just as if they had come from the King: that is to say, they had to be taken as orders that could not be disobeyed unless some way could be found of persuading the authority from which they emanated to desist voluntarily from sending such orders.

NORTHCLIFFE IN WAR ON PREMIER

His Papers Blame Lloyd George For Crisis In Anglo-French Relations

GARDINER TO HIS DEFENSE

Writes That Paris Invites To A New Start On 'Disastrous Road'

London, April 10.—The Northcliffe press this morning returns to the attack on Lloyd George over the Anglo-French misunderstanding in the most embittered language it ever used against him. The London Times attributes this "crisis of the first magnitude in Anglo-French relations" entirely to "the momentous blunder" of the Prime Minister, whom it accuses of jeopardising deliberately "the only valid guarantee for the maintenance of the peace of the world which his irresponsible conduct at the Peace Conference had left comparatively intact," that guarantee being the solidarity between England and France. The Times continues:

"We fear that before allowing his policy to be publicly revealed he had already undermined that solidarity in conversations with Dr. von Sthamer, the German Charge d'Affaires in London. We should be glad to know whether Lloyd George can affirm without the possibility of contradiction that nothing which he has said to the German representative could have justified that diplomatist or his Government in concluding that England would not stand by France in case France should unhold the Peace Treaty by acting on her own responsibility in defense of its provisions. Information that reaches us from a reliable quarter in Berlin suggests that some Germans in responsible positions had been counting upon the division which the Ruhr affair would cause among the Allies, and we have an independent reason to suspect that Lloyd George in his dealings with the German Charge d'Affaires may have been, to say the least, indiscreet."

The Times claims to know that the British note presented yesterday to the French Government by Lord Derby concluded by instructing the British Ambassador in Paris to take no part in the proceedings of the conference of Ambassadors there in so far as they may relate to the execution of the German treaty until assurance is forthcoming that France will in the future act in concert with her allies. "We understand," says The Times, "that at Thursday's Cabinet council, when the British note to France was under consideration, some Ministers urged that the wording of the note, and in particular its conclusion, should be modified so as to render them less offensive to France. Lloyd George, however, insisted upon harsher wording, and carried his point."

The Times says editorially: "Those instructions should be promptly withdrawn, and our representative should be directed to use every effort in consultation with France to find the means of restoring allied cohesion without causing an unnecessary loss of face to the British Prime Minister. Of loss of face to England there need be no fear, for on this occasion the English national honor and the amour propre of the Ministers are not identical.

The Times then refers to "the sad transformation or reversion to type which Lloyd George has undergone since the critical years of the war." It is generous enough to admit that he was "the best Prime Minister for War the country could have had." It goes on:

"With the exception of one period of serious weakness during the Spring of 1918 when in collusion with Lord Landsdowne and others he connived at, if he did not actually engage in, maneuvers for an inconclusive peace with Germany, he trod a comparatively straight path and contributed mightily to the allied victory, but after the armistice and during the peace conference temptation to indulge in actical exercises for his own political profit became too strong for him. Instead of being in Paris an element of constancy and loyalty to allied principles he become a solvent, changing his ground with bewildering agility, playing one allied country off against the other, setting President Wilson against M. Clemenceau and vice versa, and by degrees sowing worldwide distrust in the reliability of British policy. Criticism of these tactics he denounced as being inspired by personal animosity, though such criticism alone helped to save the Paris conference on more than one occasion from a complete breakdown. In short, Lloyd George carried into international affairs methods which in home affairs have brought upon him and his colleagues so large a measure of public discredit. Of these methods his present treatment of France is but the latest example."

The Daily Mail's diplomatic correspondent suggests Lloyd George is deliberately avoiding Paris on his journey to San Remo. He writes: "It was hoped by those who understand French susceptibilities that he would recognise the inadvisability at this juncture of seeming to wish to avoid passing through Paris." The Daily Mail in its editorial describes the delivery of the British note to France as the heaviest blow dealt to the Entente in its history, and concludes by declaring. We are not going to lose the friendship of France to please Lloyd George."

The other morning paper which joins in this Lloyd George attack is the Morning Post, which today charges the Prime Minister with "inflicting an affront upon France which is without parallel since the establishment of cordial relations with our neighbor in the reign of King Edward, and we might add for a long time before that epoch."

The Morning Post proceeds: "it is not difficult for folly to destroy in a day wisdom's work of years. We do not say the situation is past redemption but we have little hope that either the Prime Minister or Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs can repair their blunder. It seems to us that nothing now remains but the force of public opinion which not for the first time during and since the war has corrected the disastrous blunders of our rulers. The Prime Minister, acting as usual as his own foreign office, virtually supports Germany in her denunciation of the French action and in so doing commits this country to a policy which unless it be instantly and permanently reversed must drive France into enmity with England. If Lloyd George is courting the friendship of Germany, let him say so, and let the country judge him. We said the Government had no foreign policy. We were mistaken. The Prime Minister has a policy whose first effect is bitterly to offend France and of which the sequel may be of a gravity we forbear to describe."

On the other hand, A. G. Gardiner, who has been one of Lloyd George's bitterest opponents, comes to the Prime Minister's support. Writing in The Daily News, Mr. Gardiner says: "The occupation of the right bank of the Rhine and all that it implies confronts us and confronts the world with a decisive issue. We are invited to make a new start on the disastrous road that we took wih France at Paris a year ago. If we call it an invitation we use a mild word for so formidable and imperious a gesture. It is much more like a command. We have refused to go on that road, and Marshal Foch thereupon plunges forward, and his voice in the Paris press calls 'on their militarist allies in England to 'bring Mr. Lloyd George to heel.'"

Crane Given Welcome, Tells Americans In China To Present A United Front

the torrent of applause that followed his words.

WILSON BEHIND HIM

He explained that while he is new to the work that confronts him he had in past years gained some knowledge of the Chinese and added that he had had many happy experiences with the Chinese people.

Before his departure from America Mr. Crane said he had had an hour of confidential talk with President Wilson, who, he said, as all knew, has not been very well. He said the conversation took place on the south verandah of the White House and he expressed the belief that no representative of the Government had ever set forth with more complete or more inspiring instructions than those that were given to him. He said it was a matter of surprise to him to learn the depth of understanding that President Wilson had with regard to affairs in China. He added that the president's interest in everything connected with China's affairs was wholly profound, but he emphasised that in the instructions given to him were no new doctrines.

He spoke at some length of President Wilson's doctrines, adding that it is well-known that doctrines often precede practise by many years. On the subject of President Wilson's pronouncements of belief he said it was wonderful how they had spread through the world and it was here that he made reference to the work he was engaged in for the Paris Peace Conference with Dr. H. C. King on the commission on Mandates in Turkey. While carrying out the work of this commission in the Near East he said he found that the words of President Wilson had stirred the interest of Arabs and Bedouins just as they had stirred the people of other lands. The pronouncements of President Wilson, he said, had passed into the permanent wisdom of the world.

SELF DETERMINATION

Continuing he said, unhappily, President Wilson's doctrines had not been well received since the war. They had not been applied in the Mediterranean countries, he added, with the result that much unhappiness had been the outcome in that quarter of the world. He expressed the hope that these doctrines would receive more consideration in the countries of the Pacific.

On the subjects of 'self determination' and 'no annexation' as propounded by President Wilson he admitted that seemingly little headway had been made and he drew a comparison between the affairs of China and the progress of America through the past 100 years.

EDUCATION IS NEED

He quoted a statement that President Wilson had made to him on one occasion saying, "If I can do ever so little to lift the burden from humanity, I will be satisfied." From this he went on to point out the manifest burdens that China is struggling under, the physical problems of transportation and others, and as a remedy for the situation in this country he said education was needful—education along American lines.

If China, he said, can go through the same process of evolution that America has experienced this country can add greatly to the peace and the wealth of the world. If the course of exploitation in China is continued though, and the country is hampered and prevented from developing peacefully, what the future holds is doubtful.

"You can't tell about these pacifist states," he added as a warning and pointed out that America long had been regarded as a pacifist country.

He said his last hour in Washington had been spent in an interview with the Secretary of State, the Secretary of War and the Secretary of the Navy and the result of this was the thought that they all had held in accord and this was that whatever their differences it was important now for Americans in China to present a united front.

STREET UNION'S SCROLL

Officers of the Shanghai Street Union yesterday addressed a message of welcome to Mr. Crane in the form of a Chinese scroll. It was signed by Mr. Chen Tsze-ming, president and Messrs. Ching Fusung and Yu Kuo-tsung, vice-presidents of the union.

A translation of the message follows:

"The United States and China are two great Republics facing each other on the shores of the Pacific, and have enjoyed cordial relationship. In all matters of justice and humanity the two nations have unanimously given their sympathetic support.

"The knowledge of your Excellency on the Far Eastern situation is well-known and our people rejoice at the happy tidings that Your Excellency has been given the important office of representing your country in China. We are sure that you will uphold the principle of justice so that the friendly relations now existing between the two great Republics will be cemented together more closely.

"This association ventures to represent all the merchants of the Port of Shanghai in extending to you a sincere and hearty welcome and in wishing you bon voyage to your new post."

The main streets of Shanghai were beflagged yesterday in honor of Mr. Crane's arrival in deference to a circular sent out Sunday by the Street Unions.

Important Notice

My late grandfather, Mr. Chuan Sien, (筠仙公) had, in the thirteenth year of Kwang Shu, bought twenty shares of the Chen Chi Woo Insurance Co., (仁濟和保險公司) Nos. 16140/59, with an interest Book. On the 5th day of 7th moon of the Kee Vee year (己未), my servant, Yue Tseng Yung, was ordered and brought with him the said share certificates, by traveling in the train from Changsha to Hankow, for drawing interest. While he was at Li-lu in the night, the said certificates were stolen and immediately after the case was reported to the Railway Station for recovery, without trace.

Having requested the Magistrate and Chamber of Commerce jointly the said Insurance Company, Shanghai, was advised of the loss and to issue new Certificates.

I hereby further declare the nullification of the original, both in Chinese and Foreign Newspapers of Shanghai and Hankow.

CHANGSHA.

Series Of Flags Presented To City—Hospitality To Army Men Lauded

(Reuter's Service)

London, May 20.—The Lord Mayor of Bristol presided at a function in that city today which was attended by the official representatives of the Dominions for the purpose of presenting a series of flags to the city in acknowledgment of the kindness and hospitality extended to wounded and sick soldiers during the war.

Sir George Perley, High Commissioner for Canada, presented the Canadian flag, Sir Thomas Mackenzie, the High Commissioner for New Zealand, the New Zealand flag, Colonel Helbert for the High Commissioner for the Union of South Africa, the Union of South Africa flag and Mr. Robert Bush, on behalf of General Birdwood, the flag of the Australian Imperial Forces.

Sir Thomas Mackenzie in the course of his speech, said that they were thanked for helping the Mother Country but they remembered what the Mother Country did for the Dominions in earlier days in expending blood and treasure.

Fresh From the Ovens—

New Post Toasties represent the most appetizing form in which choice, nutritious Indian corn has ever been prepared.

A new patented process which includes rotary toasting under quick, intense heat gives these flakes a delicious new and distinctive flavour.

The New Toasties are featured by the bubbly appearance of the surface of the flakes—due to this new art of toasting which releases the wonderful new and attractive true corn taste.

New Post Toasties are not "chaffy" in the package; and they don't mush down when milk or cream is added like common "corn flakes."

Our New Minister

HON. Charles R. Crane, our new American Minister to China, arrived in Shanghai yesterday and will depart for his post in Peking today. Following the enthusiastic reception at the jetty he was officially welcomed by the local representatives of the Peking Government and Chinese social and business organisations at a reception during the afternoon, and in the evening was the guest of honor at a banquet tendered by the American official and business community of Shanghai.

Mr. Crane's is the latest name to be written on that long and extraordinarily brilliant list of Ministers it has been America's good fortune to send to China, and in adding our hearty welcome to him we wish to congratulate both China and America on his selection for, and acceptance of, the very difficult Peking portfolio. And this not only because of his splendid record of achievement in other fields, but particularly because of the fact that for the last forty years or more he has been an exceptionally keen student of Far Eastern questions. He first visited China in 1880.

It is doubtful if there is another man in America better qualified to take hold of the vast and complex problems which are being created by the slow but certain awakening of China. We are sorry to have to report to him that he will find that not much progress has been made towards the solution of these problems since he was out here a year and a half ago. He came then on a special unofficial mission for the American Government and he undoubtedly came at the behest of President Wilson. Between the President and Mr. Crane there is a warm personal friendship of many years' duration. Mr. Crane's beautiful home at Woods Hole Massachusetts, is to be the Summer White House this year. The President and Mrs. Wilson will spend their vacation there.

Mr. Crane was first appointed to this present post in 1909 by President Taft but resigned before coming out. He was vice chairman of the Democratic Financial Committee during the Wilson campaign of 1912 and later declined appointment as Ambassador to Russia. He is the head of the well-known Crane Company of Chicago, Trustee of the Chicago Bureau of Public Efficiency, ex-President of the Municipal Voters' League of Chicago, a powerful organisation for the purification of politics; he is President of the Board of Trustees of the American College for Girls, at Constantinople, and was treasurer of the American Committee for the Armenian and Syrian Relief, which raised and expended millions of dollars. He also served as a member of the President's Special Diplomatic Mission to Russia in 1917.

These are only a few of his activities but they serve to reveal a man of far horizons, well-fitted both by experience and a natural bent, to help in the solution of those Far Eastern questions of which Dr. Paul S. Reinsch, Mr Crane's immediate predecessor recently said:

"One out of every four human beings in the world is Chinese, and China is fermenting into modern national life. Those 400,000,000 people are about to enter the family of nations as a unified racial, cultural, political, economic group, one of the greatest of the great powers. Is this enormous increment of the world's population to develop in accordance with the constructive ideals America believes in, or into another international devil of unrest and destruction? By her unique position of trust and regard in the mind and heart of China, and by her equally unique position of solidity and strength among the shaken nations of the world, America holds in her hands today two keys to the doors of the future of all Eastern Asia. Shall we make or mar it?"

Mr. Crane, we do not hesitate to predict, will be of distinguished help to China, in providing the right answer to that question.

Confederate Navy Men

Congress has been asked to place upon the records of the United States Navy as "resigned," the names of 136 officers who left that service to enter the Confederate Navy. Among these 136 men—all now dead—were some of the most distinguished officers of the Southern naval service. General Robert E. Lee's brother, Captain Sidney Smith Lee, and the celebrated ocean geographer, Commander Matthew F. Maury, are two of them.

At the time these men left the United States naval service several hundred other officers, too, determined to cast their fortunes with the South. These other officers are carried on the naval polls as "resigned," but for some cause the 136 are registered as "dismissed." The Confederate Naval Veterans has made the request that the 136 be set down in the records as having resigned.

Senator Harrison of Mississippi has introduced a joint resolution, which has been referred to the Naval Affairs Committee allowing every officer or midshipman of the United States Navy or Marine Corps who "was dismissed therefrom solely because he left such service to join or because he joined the Confederate forces for service during the civil war" to be held to have been honorably discharged. The Secretary of the Navy is authorised by the resolution to make the necessary change in the roster.

The action of Senator Harrison was taken on petition of Admiral A. O. Wright, commander of the Confederate Naval Veterans, who wrote:

"The heroism these men displayed during the civil war is an American heritage and may be the pride of every American citizen. Their sons and grandsons fought your battles in the Spanish-American War. Their grandsons and great-grandsons are fighting the battles of America today. The are denied the privilege of joining patriotic orders because their ancestors are branded as having been dismissed from the service.

"The Confederate Naval Veterans have tried to get the Confederate Army Veterans to join in this petition, and include those who resigned from the United States Army in 1861 to cast their fortunes with their States, but we have been unable to do so. In fact, we withdrew our petition last June for that purpose. After waiting a year to secure their co-operation and receiving no response, we feel that we should not be denied because they have not joined with us in our petition.

"Every man named in that list of 136 is dead, and of the 6,000 who served in the Confederate States Navy all are dead but about 150, and those are following them fast, and we ask this boon at the hands of Congress before we, too, have passed away.

"In the list is Captain Sidney Smith Lee, brother of General Robert E. Lee. The General resigned April 25, 1861, and his resignation was accepted. The Captain resigned April 22, 1861 and the Navy Register records him as having been dismissed on that date. Captain Lee's name appears on the accompanying list.

"This act of grace is within the power of Congress, either to date the accentance of these resignations back to the time they resigned or of this date, fifty-seven years after they resigned."

Solution Of Europe's Disorder, As Seen By Baruch

An Interview With The President's Adviser—Treaty Delay, German Colonies, Reparation Clauses, Russia—Work And Peace Under The League As A Cure For World's Ills

(New York Times)

Europe, "rent with debate, many-spotted with question," seems to the average bewildered observer to be suffering from a malady extremely complex and intricate. Its symptoms are so varied and so far-reaching, involving as they do popular unrest, political uncertainty, industrial disorganisation and international jealousies, that a prolonged course of expert treatment would seem necessary to cure all the disorders manifest there. But Bernard M. Baruch expresses in a single word the cause of the trouble, and in a single word what he believes to be the cure. The cause is idleness. The cure is work.

Mr. Baruch was head of the War Industries Board at Washington before he went to Paris as economic adviser to the American delegation at the Peace Conference. No other American, probably, is better equipped than he to discuss the after-effects of the World War and the results of putting the Versailles Treaty into full operation. He helped draft the economic clauses of the treaty, and he saw clearly, as did Mr. Wilson and the other members of the delegation, that Germany would not be able to pay the indemnity that could be imposed on her, nor would it be wise to make impossible terms with her. In fact, he testified at the hearings of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee to that effect; but when a similar statement was made afterward in John Maynard Keynes's book, "The Economic Consequences of the Treaty," it was received in some quarters as though it were a startling revelation. Mr. Baruch's testimony showed that Germany's inability to pay what could be assessed against her was reckoned with and provided for in the machinery of the Reparation Commission itself.

But when asked last week to elaborate upon that testimony and to apply his acquaintance with European conditions to the clarification of the present situation, Mr. Baruch proved a somewhat difficult witness. What resulted was not so much an interview in the accepted sense as a conversation, and he made it clear at the outset that he expressed personal opinions, in his capacity as a private citizen. What was said will be set down here as nearly as may be just as it took place.

DISORDER DUE TO DELAY

"Do you regard our failure to ratify the treaty as the cause of the present disorganisation in Europe?" he was asked.

"Yes," he replied, emphatically. "The primary cause of that situation is idleness. As soon as Europe gets back to work her troubles will begin to disappear. But Europe cannot get back to work until peace has been established, and firmly established. I believe that this best could be done by accepting the Treaty of Versailles. One of the first things that must be done is to make more definite and reasonable the terms in regard to the reparation. This is possible within the treaty. The President and his advisers advocated that all the way through the negotiations at Paris, but never received any support from any other delegation, at any time."

"Do you regard economic conditions, then, as the cause of the present unrest and military activity in Europe?"

"Yes. Economic conditions are usually the cause of discontent which results either in appeals to force or political revolutions. Even when not forced to resort to violence, mankind has ever attempted, unsuccessfully I believe, to overcome the result of unfavorable natural economic factors by man-made laws. The law of supply and demand is as immutable as the law of gravitation. Men have endeavored to counteract it by statutes. They have often at times softened its effects, but never have they been able to control it entirely by legislative enactment. It is difficult to balance the supply nicely against the demand, principally because of the human equations involved.

"If the spirit of service could be substituted successfully for the incentive of personal gain or profit, we might come nearer the goal, but all experiments of that kind are doomed to failure until human nature is made over again. Such attempts are certain to wreck the present system of production and distribution, which society has built up laboriously over centuries of time.

"All men should have equal opportunity, and we like to believe that all men are born equal. We have been endeavoring to provide equality of opportunity in this country by means of our Constitution and our laws, and we are continually progressing to that end. That was the aim of Magna Charta, of the Declaration of Independence, of the French Revolution. It is to be hoped that men will continue to strive for the establishment of equal rights. But men are not born equal physically or mentally. They have been endeavoring by human laws to overcome these inequalities, but no legal machinery can equalise their natural abilities nor their natural facility for work; and so we have endeavored to adjust the difference, to some extent, by our system, for instance, of taxation. Thus we tax into the Public Treasury for the common benefit part of the product of the brains or the work of those better qualified. So far that is the best we can do. No man-made law can make a sculptor, a poet or an artist, a great bricklayer or farmer, a great orator or a great Judge. The qualities which go to the making of such men are inborn. They can be improved by application and study. Our modern system of education is another of our attempts to equalise or offset inborn inequalities by training and by placing at the disposal of all the results of other men's efforts and thought."

A FREE HAND FOR RUSSIA

"You referred a moment ago, Mr. Baruch, to the attempt to substitute a spirit of service for the incentive to gain. What do you think of the political situation in Russia?"

"No one has any exact information about what is going on in Russia. Most everything we get is tinged with propaganda at one extreme or the other. But Russia and the Russian people have a right, it seems to me, to set up any form of government they wish. The world has no right to impose any system of government upon any people. Neither would Russia have a right to try to impose upon the rest of the world a system of government the rest of the world did not desire. If the Russian form of government is one which endeavors to substitute the spirit of service or equal service for personal initiative and gain I fear it is doomed to failure because it is opposed to the social structure which man, after thousands of years of constructive effort, has built. Even if it were right, men will have to be made over or greatly changed before the world can support itself and make progress under this form of government."

"You testified before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, Mr. Baruch, that you did not think Germany could pay the full amount of the reparation that could be imposed upon her. To that extent are you not in agreement with the critics of the treaty, notably Mr. Keynes?"

"To that extent, yes. But the treaty makes provision for this situation. That there should be a fixed and reasonable sum was the position of the President and of all his economic advisers at Paris. The position of Mr. Keynes in regard to the tariff and coal clauses, however, is incorrect. Many of his criticisms are unfair and incomplete. He shows a total lack of knowledge not alone of many facts but of the human equation. He is as unreasonable and destructive, and, one fears, as great a master of sophistry as he says those he criticises were. The only remedy he proposes which cannot be carried out under the permanent Reparations Commission is that America shall pay instead of Germany.

"As to remedies, the best thing that could happen would be for the Reparations Commission to get together as soon as possible and fix a reasonable sum that Germany could pay. I do not think the United States should do anything likely to debilitate Europe by attempting to help her out of her present economic disorganisation. We should only help her to get back to work. When that is done we should help her bear the burdens she is unable to bear alone."

GERMANY'S COAL AND COLON

"Do you think that the coal clauses of the treaty, for instance, work serious injury to Germany?"

"No. There seems to be a great misunderstanding regarding those clauses. In addition to the coal to make up for the loss from France's destroyed mines, the only coal Germany is required to export to the allied countries is the same amount she exported to them before the war, and even this is required only for a limited period, and only if it does not interfere with Germany's industrial life. As a matter of fact there are large amounts of coal Germany can mine when she gets ready. The trouble with her at present is that she won't work. She won't dig the coal out of the mines. If the German and other coal fields in Europe were being properly developed now, Europe would not need coal. The difficulty in the German and in certain other sections of the European industrial situation is that the people are in arms instead of being at work; and the United States must be careful lest, by being a Santa Claus, we enervate and weaken some sections of Europe by helping those who might better be left to help themselves more. We should be generous and helpful without being maudlin and hurtful."

"Do you think taking Germany's colonies from her works a severe hardship upon her?"

"That question goes outside my special province. But undoubtedly something must be done to meet the problem of increasing population in Germany. You cannot restrict a growing population within certain boundaries to the point of industrial or financial or physical strangulation without causing war, or what is worse, evil social conditions which manifest themselves in various ways."

"Do you think it possible, Mr. Baruch, that Germany can re-establish a merchant marine?"

"Certainly it is possible. It depends partly, however, upon the wisdom and generously of the Allies. The ownership of a merchant marine in time of peace is not very different from the ownership of raw materials. In time of war or blockade we overemphasise their importance because the channels through which they move are disrupted. Under peaceful conditions both ships and raw materials will move naturally to the highest-paying market."

"Do you think the Reparations Commission will restrict Germany from obtaining necessary raw materials for her factories?"

"Absolutely not. There is a lot of misunderstanding about the Reparations Commission. What is bound to happen (and it is possible under the commission as it is constituted) is that it will finally agree, and the sooner the better for all concerned, upon some fixed sum that Germany can pay. The commission will then dissolve and Germany will be left to work out her own salvation. It will be possible for her to get what she needs, and I do not anticipate that there will be any interference with the natural course of business.

"But although we should be fair and just, even generous, to our recent enemies, at the same time we must not forget that our allies, particularly devastated France and Belgium and Italy, are looking primarily for relief to the sums received from the German reparational payments, and that they have the first claim on our sympathy and any active aid we can give. I think there is a tendency now to underestimate Germany's ability to pay, just as there was a tendency to overestimate it at first.

CAUSES CRIPPLING GERMANY

"My views were frankly expressed before the Senate Foreign Relations Committee in August, to the effect that the Americans from the President down continuously endeavored to have a fixed amount agreed upon within the limits of Germany's ability to pay; that it would be impossible for Germany to pay in full, because Germany had lost her private property, her shipping, the industries of Alsace-Lorraine, 70 percent of her iron, 30 percent of her coal, favorable contracts for raw materials, her colonies, and because her great commercial houses, which brought raw materials in and redistributed them in the form of manufactured articles, were practically destroyed; that this would be seen, and that when the commission got together after a discussion with the Germans some fixed sum would be arrived at; that intelligence must be shown in the treatment of the German reparations in order that Germany would know what she had to pay and be put upon her feet; and that the Allies would know what Germany could pay and would use it to rehabilitate their own financial and industrial fabric."

"If Germany is admitted later to the League of Nations what will be the effect on the military and industrial provisions of the treaty?"

"That would depend on the state of the public mind at the time Germany became a member. One would naturally suppose that if Germany gains the right to enter the society of nations in good standing, military occupation of her territory would either be modified or entirely eliminated. One would hardly suppose that any member of the League would continue to occupy with military forces the territory of another member."

"What is the economic effect of the maintenance of large standing armies in Germany, the Balkans, Russia and other parts of Europe?"

"The effect is to take units of production and distribution out of constructive endeavor and devote them to destructive activity. It is to supplant hope with fear in the hearts of the populations. If they do not make peace and work their aim instead of war and idleness we ought not even help them. We have to work for a living. So should they."

"In what ways will the establishment of the League help to restore commercial and financial stability?"

"Anything that will establish peace in the world and permit men to get back to work will restore financial and commercial stability. We have reached the bottom of underproduction. All we need now is more production and economy in consumption. That can come from peace and work, and in no other way."

A MAGISTRATE'S BULL

Before a Dublin magistrate came Mike O'Leary charged with imbibing so freely that he had become disorderly. "Drunk again, eh, O'Leary," said the magistrate. "It's ten shillings or you'll go to prison," "Sure, but I've got only one shillin' to me name," replied O'Leary. "Then there's nothing for you but the prison. If you had not got drunk with your money, you would have had enough to pay the fine!"

Possible Explanation

"How's the 'hot dog' business?"

"Not what it used to be," answered the man wearing a white apron.

"I don't see why."

"I don't see why myself, unless it's because no matter how many soft drinks a man consumes in the course of a day it doesn't make him careless about what he eats."

Not A Chnace

Creditor—How often must I climb these five flights of stairs before I get the amount that is due me?

Debtor—Do you think I am going to move down to the ground floor just to accommodate my creditors?

Mild But Not Skilful

"I understand he never swears when playing golf."

"That's true. He's very mild-mannered."

"He must play a great game."

"I wouldn't say that. If I played the kind of golf he does I'd be swearing all the time."

Prohibition For India

Combination Of Christian Missionaries, Mohammedans And Hindus For A Dry Regime In That Country

(New York Times)

A prohibition movement looking to make India dry by gradual stages and uniting under its banner leaders of Mohammedanism and Hinduism with Christian missionaries, has been unleashed in the British dependency primarily as a result of the Reform bill which handed over the Department of Excise to native control. According to the Rev. B. T. Badley of Lucknow, executive secretary for India of the Methodist Centenary Movement, recently arrived in New York:

"As long as excise was controlled by England herself," said Mr. Badley, "a temperance and prohibition movement was impossible. Four or five years ago when the Indian representatives on the Viceroy's Council introduced a resolution looking to the introduction of prohibition into India, the Imperial Legislative Council divided with every British official voting against the measure and every native for it. The British majority won.

"But under the new reform Government both the Imperial and the Provincial Legislative Councils have great majorities of Indian members. A bill looking to prohibition that may come forward now is likely to meet with a very different fate.

"Realising this, the Methodist Centenary has organised a department which aims to wipe out the Hindenburg line of rum in India and trusts to the fullest co-operation of both Hindus and Mohammedans in this undertaking. Already Mohammedan and Hindu leaders are serving on our committees. Our organisation is such that it can go clean through the country, for Methodism is represented in all parts of India. There isn't a railroad junction of any importance where we are not established."

Although, according to Mr. Badley, thoughtful men of all religions and all political parties are supporting the prohibition movement, there is an almost insurmountable obstacle in the way of early success. This is due to the fact that the budget for education is largely drawn from the excise revenue.

"Education," he continued, "is one of the most important problems before India today, especially in view of the transcendent importance of preparing an intelligent constituency for a Government that looks forward to achieving democracy. There is no municipal tax for education. Therefore, if excise were to be dispensed with at one swoop, education would be stifled.

"What will happen is problematical. It is likely, however, that some scheme will be worked out whereby liquor sales will be reduced by yearly gradations, and each depletion of the liquor money paid into the educational fund will be made up by some other form of taxation. Thus new sources for educational funds can be opened up gradually, liquor being dispensed with gradually until eliminated. In the past forty-five years the revenue derived from excise had increased from $6,000,000 to $40,000,000 a year.

"It is sometimes said outside of India," he continued, "that only the white man drinks and the native is abstemious. That is not true. Buffaloes carrying great leather bags across their backs filled with the palm wine toddy made from the palm tree are driven from village to village. Men, women and children come out to get their supplies in brass or earthen vessels. Children drink it right on the streets. Everybody also drinks a crude liquor made from the mahua flower which is most deadly in its effect. In some regions the village saloon is a shack that is abandoned as soon as conditions make that desirable. Shacks where liquor is sold are put up along the way where fairs are held. In the cities, too, drinking is greatly on the increase, especially in the matter of foreign liquors.

"The Koran is not keeping Mohammedans from drinking, although it forbids any follower of the prophet to touch liquor. The Hindu's sacred books are not preventing the Hindu from drinking, and neither is the Bible preventing Christians from drinking."

Born in India forty-four years ago, son of the founder and first President of Lucknow College, Mr. Badley has lived most of his life in India, being educated, however, in America at Ohio Wesleyan College and Columbia University. He is the author of a number of books.

One effect of the extension of the Indians' powers of self-government, it appears, and one which will have increasing scope as the natives come more into power with the fuller development of home rule, is that Hindus and Mohammedans are squeezing out the native Christians now in Government service. The Methodist organisation, according to Mr. Badley, has plans for co-operative stores on mission sites in large centers such as Lucknow and Calcutta. Employment might be found for many Christian ex-civil servants as managers of these establishments.

Step-And-A-Half Mose On Teachers' Salaries -:- By 'Bugs' Baer

"Boss," said Step-and-a-Half, as he took off his pearl buttoned shoes, "a man without an edgercation is sumpin' like this short leg of mine. It wears out jest as many shoes, but the good leg has to do all the work. A man without an edgercation is a short leg in the community. I sees in the papers that teechers wants more celery with their meals. I ain't no vegeteerian. In fact I ain't nothin' that's over two s'labulls. But if teechers wants more celery, they ought to get it before they gets sore and starts telling the kids the truth about American history.

"They tels me that teechers don't get enough money to keep body an' half-soles together. Supposin' them teechers started tellin' them kids that the joolery what Queen Izzabel gives to Columbuss was picked up in a hock shop in Spain an' that George Washington stood up in a rowboat while crossin' a river? Supposin' them teechers starts buzzin' to them pewpils that Paul Revere rode away from them Red-Coats because he felt healthier goin' in that direction? Boss, them teechers ain't gettin' paid enough to tell the truth. Not that Columbuss didn't do right by soakin' them trinkets. I hock my own gal's joolery, but I'm honest about it. I always gives her the pawn tickets. We goes fifty-fifty. When I gives her brick-a-brack, she generally gives me a brick.

"I'm a self-edgercated man an' us teechers ought to have more celery. Nolledge is power and edgercation is the power-house. They's good men who can't read or write, but they's like a bank note without the silk. I never earned a nickel before I went to school an' learned how to put my mark on a votin' ballot. Now, I'm good for two dollars a year, rain or shine.

"It's funny stuff about edgercation. They teeches the kids to use a toothbrush and clean the food outen their teeth, but they don't tell the teechers how to get any food in their own teeths. If they did know, they wouldn't get enuff celery to make use of the nolledge. This is one time when nolledge is weakness.

"Then they pays Toto the clown to go aroun' an' make the school children laff. The guy what pays the teechers's celeries ought to take that job hisself.

"They tells me that teechers gets about twenty dollars a week. That wouldn't pay for the nickertine stains on a messenger boy's fingers. Twenty bills a week wouldn't be enuff for the laundry to roon my shirts or sharpen the edges on my collars. The hod carriers are gettin' a dollar a' hour an' they works forty-fo' hours a week. They needs the hod to tote off their wages, but when a teecher goes after her celery, she kin use a thimble for a market basket. It's a teecher's own fault or not living in Brazil or Mexico where she would be protected by the Monroe doctors. I don't know anything about them Monroe doctors, but I understands they is the only thing what prevents Europe from harin' our drubbles with Mexico.

"A hod carrier don't have to know enuff to raise blisters on his skull. They's only one thing that a hod carrier has to know.

"That's never to take both his feet offen the ladder at the same time.

"If a hod carrie- knows that he kin get twenty-two dollars a week for each foot he keeps on the ladder, I could be a hod carrier myself if it wasn't for this short leg of mine. If Tom Edison invented a ladder what was short on one side an' long on the other I could earn about twenty-five hundred of them rough-edged dollars a year, provided I felt like workin.'

"That's almost three times what a teecher gets and three times less what she earns. Bein' as I got a short leg, I has to earn my livin' thinkin.' First I thinks I will work, then I thinks I won't. Then I thinks up some new wash for my gal, and she does it. That's where science conkers broot strength. It takes broot strength to work, an' I ain't no broot. I follow Sir Walter Rawlee an' other Southern gen'm in that stuff. Whenever the boat is sinkin' an' there's an oar to be pulled in the lifeboat, my motto are wimmen an' children first.

"I earns my livin' thinkin' and thinkin' light. I don't do any heavy thinkin' because it goes to my head an' makes me dizzy. If it wasn't for the fact that I was edgercated in a school, I might try to do too much thinkin' an' get all tangled up. That's the trubble with them teechers. They edgercate their heads to the boilin' point instead of edgercating their feet like a hod carrier. Look at Charley Chaplin. He only uses his head to duck lemon pies with, but his feet sure walk on bacon. But teechers is modest. If they do have feet like Charley, they keeps 'em under the desk where the kids can't shoot spitballs at 'em.

"The Board of Edgercashun gives the teechers three months vacashun in the summer time when the weather is hot because it would cost 'em that much to keep the electrick fans goin.' Besides, an electrik fan wears out and costs money to fix. When a teecher wears out, there's always another fool woman to take her place. They's aint any doubt but man is the supperior secks. You don't 'see no men takin' jobs as lady teechers. There's only one good thing the Board of Edgercashun does for the Teechers. They doesn't allow 'em to take the added burden of a husban!' They wants the teecher to be ol' maid because they doesn't want no husban' comin' aroun' and punchin' the Board of Edgercashun on the nose because his wife's pay envelcop looks like it was pasted shut before it was filled.

"Yes sir, boss, them teechers sure don' grab much norrishment out of their jobs. They's expeckted to jam a million dollars' worth of edgercashun into a lot of ten cent heads. It's a tuff job an' it's about time that them Congressmen took a few loops in their hat bands and voted more celeries for them teecher persons.

"Teechers is like the rain what falls on the flowers. The more rain, the bigger the buds grow. An' if you cut off the rain, then them school kids is goin' to grow with heads shaped like a wheel on a B. and O. caboose. The Board of Edgercashun is awful careful that them kids get enuff to eat. They even makes up penny lunches for 'em in recess time. That's just about twice as much as they spend on their edgercashun.

"The stummick might be more important than the head, but when it come to non-support the jury always puts the alimony on the head. The stummick is what looks at the menoo, but when the head picks out green apples the stummick is the first one to register a squawk. If there ain't no teechers to teech, there ain't goin' to be nothin' in a kid's head but what gives him dandruff or earake.

"Yessir, it's about time this here administration give them teechers enuff money to teech them kids what is right an' what is wrong. But it looks like some more of them politicks.

"Them Demokratics is skeered that edgercashun is nolledge. They knows that nolledge is power.

"An' they's losin' that so fast they ain't got none to spare with no school kids."

Anecdotes Of The Famous

In "The Vanished Pomps of Yesterday," Lord Frederick Hamilton recalls one of his earliest Berlin memories, that of "a short, thick-set young man of nineteen," who sometimes rowed in the four-oared boat belonging to the attaches of the British Embassy.

"This short young man," continues the author, "had a withered arm, and the doctors hoped that exercise of rowing might put some strength into it. He seemed quite a commonplace young man, yet this short, thick-set youth was destined, less than forty years after, to plunge the world into the greatest calamity it has ever known.

"The whole course of history might have been changed," Lord Frederick Hamilton reflects, "by an incident at this time, when Lady Ampthill, the Ambassadress, saved the life of the man who was to waste millions of lives. Prince William was very anxious to learn to scull, and asked Lady Ampthill, who was an expert sculler, to coach him.

"Lady Ampthill consented, and met Prince William with a light Thames-built skiff. . . . She then explained to Prince William that this was not a heavy boat such as he had been accustomed to, that he must exercise extreme care and in getting in must tread exactly in the center of the boat. William of Hohenzollern, who had never taken advice from any one in his life, and was always convinced that he himself knew best, responded by jumping into the boat from the landing stage, capsising it immediately, and throwing himself and Lady Ampthill into 16 feet of water.

"Prince William, owing to his malformation, was unable to swim one stroke, but Lady Ampthill, a very strong swimmer, managed, in spite of the weight of her clothing, to support him in the water for five minutes until help came and they were both rescued.

"The lady concerned," adds the writer, "is still living, and I have taken down this account of the episode from her own lips. I will not say whether she regrets her action on that occasion or not."

Announces New Ship Line From Seattle To Orient

Service Begun In May From Puget Sound To Dairen And Singapore By West Jessup

(Special Correspondence)

Seattle, May 1.—Announcement is made of the inauguration of a line of steamships to sail between Seattle and Dairen and Singapore. The service will be started with the sailing of the steamship West Jessup on May 14, to be followed by the steamship Brave Coeur June 10 and the steamship Duel on July 17. These steamers are all for Dairen. The same company announces the sailing of the West Ivis June 28, West Ison July 25, and the West Jessup September 2 for Singapore.

The steamship Arcturus came to Seattle last week to load for all Oriental ports, with a full cargo booked.

A gain of over fifteen million dollars is reported in the value of imports in this district for the month of February over the same month of 1919. The principal commodities showing gains were rubber, $1,966,966; soya bean oil $1,714,795; peanut oil $1,216,982.

RECORD OF TRADE

Exports to Japan during February amounted to over $10,000,000 with imports reaching a total of over $3,000,000. China comes next with less than $75,000 difference in exports and imports, both totals running over $2,000,000 with imports leading. Third in rank is Canada which imported goods to the value of $2,390,350 and shipped to us goods worth $1,588,545.

Imports from the Straits Settlements doubled in February over the previous month. Exports to Siberia increased from almost nothing to $76,217.

With direct steamship lines now being established between this port and the Straits Settlements, Java and Australia there is every indication that the year 1920 will bring to Seattle the greatest volume of business ever recorded here, shipping men assert.

Mr. Julean Arnold, U. S. Commercial attache at Peking, is in the city on his return to China and addressed the Chamber of Commerce on the conditions in that country, and the needs of closer relations with the United States. He says Seattle is peculiarly interested in Chinese commerce and development, as it is the nearest port to that country. The Chinese are anxious to trade with America and are in need of American capital for development work in that country.

ARNOLD GIVES VIEWS

"On my tour of the United States I found new interest in China. In the large universities there is a new appreciation of the need of the study of China and her problems. The greatest need of China today is transportation. In addition to the 6,500 miles of railroad they need 100,000 miles of railways. There are seventy million Chinese in Western China cut off from economic transportation to the rest of the world, and they are so isolated that the discovery of gold there did not change their money values," said Mr. Arnold.

The increase of the foreign commerce of this port since January has been marvelous. In January, 20 steamers sailed from Seattle and 17 arrived. In February, 17 sailings and 27 arrivals. April, 27 sailings and 40 arrivals. May promises to largely increase the number with 28 sailings and 40 arrivals. The bulk of the cargo movement in May will be to the Far East, there being 20 large steel carriers scheduled for ports in Japan, China, the Philippines and the Straits Settlements. Two ships will bring cargoes of rubber from the Straits Settlements. The Osaka Shosen Kaisha will have six arrivals here in May and one departure. The Nippon Yusen Kaisha will have four arrivals in May.

Establishing the new Seattle Shanghai service the Ocean Transport Company's steamship Yonan Maru will arrive May 12 and return to Shanghai with a full cargo. The Hainan Maru will sail with full cargo for Yokohama May 6. The General Steamship Company will start the steamship West Mahwah for Australia and New Zealand about May 15. This is the first ship in the New Seattle Australian line, which will be permanent. The Maquan and Tyndarus will sail for the Orient May 14. The Liverpool Maru is loading a full cargo of lumber, steel, cotton and general merchandise for Yokoham and Kobe.

"JUBILO"
Six parts highly amusing story with plenty of heart interest
By BEN AMES WILLIAMS
"Jubilo" so named from an old darkey song of the Civil War, is a modern hobo, ever hovering between a powerful appetite for food and an equal disinclination to work. IT IS THE REVEALATION OF INNER CHANGE THAT HOLDS ATTENTION MOST CLOSELY. The characterisation is everything in this very amusing story.
